

Ken Worm has had his real estate license since 2006 and has been a managing broker for the last five years. Ken has extensive experience in leasing and real estate. His background also includes 20 years of experience in accounting and financial analysis in the banking industry as a corporate accounting manager, contractor, and consultant which has given him insight into both the financial services and real estate industries. Most recently, he worked in the REO group of a large international bank. Ken is a graduate of Northern Illinois University Business School. He is a long term resident of Chicago and has a detailed knowledge of the Chicago real estate market. He currently resides in Logan Square with wife and son.